Your network consists of one Active Directory domain. The domain contains servers that run Windows Server 2008. The servers are configured as shown in the following table. (Click the Exhibit)

Server2 and Server3 are configured as RADIUS clients.

You need to plan a solution to manage all VPN connections to the network. The solution must meet the following requirements:
Specify the allowed VPN connection protocols.

Specify the allowed VPN client authentication mechanisms.

Specify VPN client access rights based on group membership.

What should you include in your plan?

- A. a Group Policy object (GPO) applied to the computers that must establish VPN connections
- B. a Group Policy object (GPO) applied to Server2 and Server3
- C. a local computer policy on Server2 and Server3
- D. a network policy on Server4

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference: To plan a solution that would allow you to manage all VPN connections to the network by allowing you to specify the allowed VPN connection protocols, allowed VPN client authentication mechanisms, and VPN client access rights based on group membership, you need to create a network policy on Server4, which is a Network Policy Server. This server is the Microsoft implementation of a RADIUS server and proxy in Windows Server 2008.

As a RADIUS server, NPS performs centralized connection authentication, authorization, and accounting for many types of network access, including wireless and virtual private network (VPN) connections.

The GPOs cannot be used in this scenario because they can be used to Create/Replace/Update or Delete a Virtual Private Network (VPN) or Dial-Up Network (DUN) connection and cannot be used to specify the allowed VPN connection protocols, allowed VPN client authentication mechanisms, and VPN client access rights based on group membership
