NEW QUESTION: 1

Which of these is not a supported method of putting data into a partitioned table?

- A. Create a partitioned table and stream new records to it every day.
- B. If you have existing data in a separate file for each day, then create a partitioned table and upload each file into the appropriate partition.
- C. Use ORDER BY to put a table's rows into chronological order and then change the table's type to "Partitioned".
- D. Run a query to get the records for a specific day from an existing table and for the destination table, specify a partitioned table ending with the day in the format "$YYYYMMDD".

Answer: C

Explanation:

You cannot change an existing table into a partitioned table. You must create a partitioned table from scratch. Then you can either stream data into it every day and the data will automatically be put in the right partition, or you can load data into a specific partition by using "$YYYYMMDD" at the end of the table name.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which three workloads are ideal to accelerate using Cisco UCS Invicta? (Choose three.)

- A. Batch processing
- B. Transitioning from disk-based to in-memory databases
- C. Virtual desktops
- D. Mobile applications
- E. Database loads
- F. Storage media for backup and recovery operations

Answer: A,C,E

Explanation:

Because of the criticality of Database loads, the high I/O operations demand of VDI and the necessary to comply with allotted batch processing windows, these three workloads will specially benefit of the acceleration provided by UCS Invicta.
