NEW QUESTION: 1

Jack Thomas and Tim Bentley are analysts for Bond Analytics (BA). BA provides bond analysis for mutual fund managers, hedge fund managers, and institutional money managers in the United States. BA specializes in the valuation of international bonds and callable bonds, using intrasector analysis to find undervalued bonds. In addition to valuing the bonds, they also advise clients on whether to hedge currency risk for international bonds. Thomas has been a particularly strong advocate of hedging the currency risk of international bonds, especially in emerging markets, using forward contracts when they are available.

At a morning meeting, Thomas and Bentley are trying to decide whether to hedge the currency risk of a large issue of bonds from a Thai manufacturer of pressed steel, Nakhon Metals. The client considering purchasing the bonds is a large U.S. mutual fund, Epsilon Funds. Epsilon has started to explore the possibility of earning higher returns through currency management using forward contracts. Thomas and Bentley discuss the various hedges of currency risk for the Nakhon Metals bond. One possibility is using a forward hedge position on the Thai baht. A second possibility is using forward contracts where the baht is delivered for Korean won. Thomas states that the second hedge would be pursued if the won was expected to appreciate more against the U.S. dollar than the baht. In the second hedge, the manager would sell won for dollars at the future spot rate.

Thomas and Bentley gather the following information on the expected changes in the various currencies, the 1-year cash rates in the respective countries, and the expected return on the Nakhon bond.

Additionally, the Nakhon Metals bond has a duration of 7.30 and is being compared against a bond denominated in U.S. dollars, issued by Powhatan Industries. The Powhatan bond has a duration of 4.2 and a yield of 4.50%. Whichever bond is purchased will be held for the next year. Thomas projects that the yield for the Nakhon Metals bond is expected to increase by 15 basis points while the yield on the Powhatan Industries bond is expected to stay constant.

The following day, Thomas and Bentley discuss the market for and valuation of callable and long duration bonds. They believe that interest rates are temporarily low and for this reason want to be careful about their bond investments. Although they could hedge interest rate risk, they prefer not to because they believe it reduces the ultimate long-term return.

Thomas says that due to secular changes in the bond market, bonds with structures are expected to become more scarce. He says that the problem with callable bonds has been that they typically trade at a premium due to their scarcity. Bentley states that bonds with long durations also trade at a premium because they are scarce as well.

Thomas states that the performance of callables and non-callables may differ when interest rates change due to the inherent call risk. He discusses the relative performance under two scenarios:

* Scenario A: Interest rates are near coupon rates and fall for both callables and non-callables by the same amount.

* Scenario B: Interest rates are historically very low and rise for both callables and non-callables by the same amount.

The second hedge that Thomas recommends for the Nakhon Metals bond is most likely an example of which of the following currency hedging strategies?

- A. Cross hedge.
- B. Proxy hedge.
- C. Forward hedge.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In a cross hedge the manager enters into a forward contract to deliver the original foreign currency (the baht) for a second foreign currency (the won), which is predicted to appreciate against the domestic currency. The currency risk is changed from an exposure in the baht to one in the won.

In a proxy hedge the manager enters into a forward contract between the domestic currency and a second foreign currency highly correlated with the first foreign currency. Proxy hedges are typically employed when forward contracts are thinly traded or not available on the original foreign currency.

In the forward hedge, the baht would be delivered for the dollar. (Study Session 10, LOS 3 Li)

NEW QUESTION: 2

- B. Maintain counting class information for the absence and assign relevant wage types in IT0007 (Planned Working Time).
- C. Include a constant, daily vacation bonus in the payroll run and assign relevant wage types in IT0007 (Planned Working Time).
- D. Copy and adjust personnel calculation rule XMOD (employee grouping for payroll accounting) and include a constant, daily vacation bonus in the payroll run.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3

The accounts receivable manager runs a foreign currency revaluation on February 5. The foreign currency revaluation has a considered date of January 31. The period closing for this revaluation is set for January 31.

What is the result of this invoice revaluation if the invoice is settled on February 3?

- A. The revaluation includes all documents, excluding unposted, that have open amounts on the considered date.
- B. The revaluation includes only documents that have settled amounts on the considered date.
- C. The revaluation includes all documents, including unposted, that have open amounts on the considered date.
- D. The revaluation excludes documents that have been settled on the considered date.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Field: Considered date

The date for which all transactions that have open (not settled) amounts are found.

When foreign currency amounts are revalued on a considered date, this date becomes the last foreign currency revaluation date for the transactions that are revalued.

You can run a foreign currency revaluation job for a considered date that is earlier than the last foreign currency revaluation date on transactions that have already been revalued. However, transactions that are open on the earlier considered date, but that have a more recent last foreign currency revaluation date, are not revalued by the periodic job.
