Answer: C

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc772393%28v=ws.10%29.aspx> Active Directory Certificate Services Step-by-Step Guide
<http://kazmierczak.eu/itblog/2012/09/23/enterprise-ca-option-is-greyed-out-unavailable/> Enterprise CA option is greyed out / unavailable Many times, administrators ask me what to do when installing Active Directory Certificate Services they cannot choose to install Enterprise Certification Authority, because it's unavailable as in following picture: C:\Documents and Settings\usernwz1\Desktop\1.PNG

Well, you need to fulfill basic requirements: Server machine has to be a member server (domain joined). You can run an Enterprise CA on the Standard, Enterprise, or Data Center Windows Edition. The difference is the number of ADCS features and components that can be enabled. To get full functionality, you need to run on Enterprise or Data Center Windows Server 2008 /R2/ Editions. It includes functionality like Role separation, Certificate manager restrictions, Delegated enrollment agent restrictions, Certificate enrollment across forests, Online Responder, Network Device Enrollment. In order to install an Enterprise CA, you must be a member of either Enterprise Admins or Domain Admins in the forest root domain (either directly or through a group nesting). If issue still persists, there is probably a problem with getting correct credentials of your account. There are many things that can cause it (network blockage, domain settings, server configuration, and other issues). In all cases I got, this troubleshooting helped perfectly: First of all, carefully check all above requirements. Secondly, install all available patches and Service Packs with Windows Update before trying to install Enterprise CA. Check network settings on the CA Server. If there is no DNS setting, Certificate Authority Server cannot resolve and find domain. Sufficient privileges for writing the Enterprise CA configuration information in AD configuration partition are required. Determine if you are a member of the Enterprise Admins or Domain Admins in the forest root domain. Think about the account you are currently trying to install

ADCS with. In fact, you may be sure, that your account is in Enterprise Admins group, but check this how CA Server "sees" your account membership by typing whoami /groups. You also need to be a member of local Administrators group. If you are not, you wouldn't be able to run Server Manager, but still needs to be checked. View C:\windows\certocm.log file. There you can find helpful details on problems with group membership. For example status of ENUM_ENTERPRISE_UNAVAIL_REASON_NO_INSTALL_RIGHTS indicates that needed memberships are not correct. Don't forget to check event viewer on CA Server side and look for red lines. Verify that network devices or software&hardware firewalls are not blocking access from/to server and Domain Controllers. If so, Certificate Authority Server may not be communicating correctly with the domain. To check that, simply run nltest /sc_verify:DomainName Check also whether Server CA is connected to a writable Domain Controller. Enterprise Admins groups is the most powerful group and has ADCS required full control permissions, but who knows - maybe someone changed default permissions? Run adsiedit.msc on Domain Controller, connect to default context and first of all check if CN=Public Key Service,CN=Services,CN=Configuration,DC=Your,DC=Domain,DC=Com container does exist. If so, check permissions for all subcontainers under Public Key Service if Enterprise Admins group has full control permissions. The main subcontainers to verify are Certificate Templates, OID, KRA containers. If no above tips help, disjoin the server from domain and join again. Ultimately reinstall operation system on CA Server.
