Explanation:

Webbed feet enable ducks to swim better by increasing the surface area on their feet. In swimming, being hydrodynamic, not aerodynamic, is important (choice a). Stuck particles between a duck's toes, choice c, would most likely not be a frequent problem. Webbed feet would not affect the duck's density, choice d, by much. The rate of heat loss, choice e, may be slightly higher because of larger surface area, but heat loss is not essential for swimming.
