NEW QUESTION: 3

Your company has an Active Directory forest that contains client computers that run Windows Vista and Windows XP.

You need to ensure that users are able to install approved application updates on their computers.

Which two actions should you perform? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)

- A. Create a GPO and link it to the domain. Configure the GPO to direct the client computers to the Windows Server Update Services (WSUS) server for approved updates.
- B. Install the Windows Server Update Services (WSUS). Configure the server to search for new updates on the Internet. Approve all required updates.
- C. Set up Automatic Updates through Control Panel on the client computers.
- D. Create a GPO and link it to the Domain Controllers organizational unit. Configure the GPO to automatically search for updates on the Microsoft Update site.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

To be able to "approve" updates at all, WSUS must be installed in the AD environment.

Creating a GPO for client computers (linked to the domain) will ensure they all receive only the "approved" updates by forcing them to communicate with the WSUS server instead of Microsoft's servers.

WRONG ANSWERS

Configured Automatic Updates on each client will only control the download and (optional) automatic installation of updates. Linking a GP to the Domain Controllers OU only affects domain controllers.

Both of these options would also not allow "approval" or management of updates - all updates would be downloaded.
